SAIFON DOUCET & NANETTE DUFFY, DOUCET PRODUCTIONS

WELCOME COLLEAGUES AND FRIENDS,

On behalf of the 50+ ethnic news outlets here today, thank you for joining us at our second annual Houston Community Media Expo, Conference & Awards at the Alief ISD Center for Talent Development.

Our event is all about stepping outside your media silo and making connections with news outlets that reach niche audiences across Greater Houston. These are the media platforms that help fill the information gap – and the trust gap – that separates our public sector from people's private lives, and separates communities from each other. Our program directory lists over 85 multi-media, multi-lingual news outlets for you to explore.

Our Expo exhibits are open between 8:30-9:30 am, during our Expo lunch from 12-1:15 pm, and at our reception between 5-6 pm. As you browse through the exhibitor tables, you can meet and talk directly with leaders and content producers from Asian, Black, Latino, Middle Eastern, LGBTQ, youth news and social media platforms.

Join our plenary sessions which feature discussions about the need for more inclusive communications on issues that matter most to our audiences. There's also a special workshop about the pluses and minuses of using AI in the newsroom.

We urge you to stay for our awards presentation from 6-7 pm which celebrates what's unique about our sector of journalism – telling stories from the inside out, amplifying advocacy voices that otherwise wouldn't be heard, providing news-you-can-use columns from trusted sources. Summaries of the winning entries are displayed on posters throughout the expo area.

In this era of AI, our multi-media, multi-lingual sector is high touch – a way to engage with audiences directly across ethnic, racial and generational lines. The take-away message is that we've grown a collective news sector that's stronger for working together, and we're eager to connect with you.

Our deep thanks to the Houston Endowment for its support and inspiration – and to all of you who participated over the last two years in our monthly news briefings, invited us to your events, invested in our one-buy, one-bill marketing program. To those who are coming for the first time, we hope you discover a parallel universe of news and information you didn't know existed.

ENJOY THE DAY.

Houston Community Media

ABOUT HCoM

VISION

To build a sustainable and resilient network of community media in Houston, ensuring that diverse voices are amplified and local stories are told for generations to come.

MISSION

Build an effective advocacy voice by, for, and with community media to help sustain and grow the sector

Promote inter-communications through collaborative editorial and social marketing projects

Expand career paths for ethnic media reporters through reporting fellowships and professional trainings.

Ensure an equitable distribution of ad dollars for the ethnic media's role in engaging and informing audiences on vital issues

Strengthen communications between community media and nonprofit advocacy and grassroots service organizations

PURPOSE

To strengthen the voices of Houston's diverse communities by fostering collaboration, providing professional development, and amplifying underrepresented perspectives through our network of community media outlets.

OUR ENGAGEMENT

In Houston, the most diverse city in the nation, Houston Community Media empowers residents through its network of community media outlets. Representing every neighborhood, we create platforms for dialogue, amplify diverse perspectives, and work collaboratively to drive meaningful solutions for Houston and beyond.

SERVE AS MEDIA HUB

Houston Community Media serves and representing neighborhoods across the city, HCM creates platforms for open dialogue, amplifies diverse voices, and works collaboratively to address local issues and drive meaningful change throughout Houston and beyond.

PROFESSIONAL TRAINING AND FELLOWSHIPS

Through these programs, we empower local journalists and media professionals with the skills, resources, and support they need to strengthen their work and better serve all of Houston's communities.

MONTHLY NEWS BRIEFINGS

Houston Community Media organizes monthly roundtable briefings that bring together leading experts, public officials, and passionate advocates. These sessions provide a dynamic forum for open discussion and collaboration on the most urgent issues facing our community.

COMMUNITY EVENTS

Houston Community Media builds a stronger connections between neighborhoods and ensure every voice is heard. By showing up, listening, and creating space for dialogue, HCM helps foster trust, celebrate diversity, and highlight local solutions. These events are vital for empowering residents and driving meaningful change across Houston.

FOUNDING MEMBERS

Houston Community Media began its journey with just 16 dedicated members who believed in the power of local voices and community storytelling. Their loyalty and commitment laid a strong foundation for our growth, and we are deeply grateful for their vision and support. Thanks to these founding members, HCoM has expanded to include over 60 community media outlets, each contributing to a vibrant and diverse media landscape across Houston. Our story is a testament to what can be achieved when a community comes together with a shared vision. We would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to our original 16 members, who are listed below.

PLENARY SESSION II

COMMS SPECIALISTS - STRATEGIES FOR INFORMING AND ENGAGING

GENEVIEVE GENEST

VP of Development, The Texas Tribune

Genevieve Genest is an experienced fundraising strategist serving as the Associate Vice President of Development at The Texas Tribune. In her leadership role, she oversees the organization's fundraising initiatives and strategic processes to advance independent, public-interest journalism across Texas. Genest brings nearly a decade of nonprofit development and donor relations experience to the newsroom, having previously managed key environmental outreach programs at organizations like the Galveston Bay Foundation.

JOY LANGSTON

Executive VP & COO, Southwestern Bank

Joy began her banking career in 1975 at Frost Bank in San Antonio as a corporate trust clerk and secretary to the vice president of bookkeeping. She went on to hold operations, compliance, and financial management roles at First National Bank of Alvin, The Express Bank and First Community Bank before joining Southwestern Bank in Houston in 2005. As Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, she oversees a broad range of operational and regulatory responsibilities. For over five decades, Langston has helped banks adapt to change while maintaining strong internal controls and sound operations. She considers witnessing banking's transformation from paper ledgers to AI, instant payments, and digital convenience one of the profession's most rewarding aspects.

CORY STOTTELMYER

Director of Communications and Deputy Shelter Director, BARC Animal Shelter & Adoptions

Cory is an experienced municipal leader and media strategist who serves as the Director of Communications and Deputy Shelter Director for BARC Animal Shelter & Adoptions, the city of Houston's animal control and adoption facility. He plays a pivotal role in managing public relations and navigating complex community issues for the agency, including volunteer oversight and strategic shelter programming. Transitioning from a departmental Public Information Officer to his current dual executive role, he directly oversees BARC's public outreach, customer service, and animal registration teams. Stottlemeyer actively works to increase public awareness regarding critical animal welfare challenges in the Houston area, focusing heavily on addressing rising shelter intake rates, pet microchipping, and expanding community-driven adoption initiatives.

CYNTHIA HURRINGTON

Principal Communications Strategist, Elmore PR

Cynthia Hurrington is an outcomes-focused communications executive serving as a Principal and Senior Communications Strategist at Elmore Public Relations in Houston. With over 15 years of diverse industry experience spanning oil and gas, non-profits, professional services, and food manufacturing, Hurrington specializes in high-impact corporate storytelling and large-scale rebranding campaigns. Notably, she previously served as the Director of Communications for the Houston Endowment, where she directed public relations for the grand opening of their headquarters. Actively engaged in her community, Hurrington contributes her strategic planning expertise on the boards of TexProtects and the Houston Immigration Legal Services Collaborative.

PLENARY SESSION III

TRACKING FEDERAL & STATE IMMIGRATION POLICIES

ANNE CHANDLER

Founder & Exec. Director, Texas Immigration Law Council

Anne is an immigration attorney and public interest leader serving as the Founding Executive Director of the Texas Immigration Law Council. With over two decades of experience, Chandler drives systemic policy advocacy in Texas, frequently testifying before state legislative committees to protect the rights of mixed-status families and oppose bills that negatively impact immigrant communities. She previously shaped regional and federal safety-net policies as executive director of Houston Volunteer Lawyers and the Tahirih Justice Center. A former clinical law professor, Chandler works continuously to close the state's justice gap.

CHELSEIE KRAMER

Texas State Organizer, American Immigration Council

Chelsie serves as the Texas State Organizer for the American Immigration Council, where she manages a powerful business coalition focused on the economic contributions of immigrants. Based in Houston, she is also as a Foundation Director for the Texas Association of Business (TAB) and an advisor for Public Private Strategies. She brings over a decade of Texas public policy experience, including running statewide campaigns and working as a Republican legislative staffer. A frequent media commentator, she actively advocates for market-driven immigration reforms, workforce development, and the protection of higher education access like the Texas Dream Act.

ZENOBI A LAI

Exec. Director, Houston Immigration Services Collaborative

As Executive Director, Zenobia provides the strategic vision for HILSC to carry out its dual role as a funder and program incubator. Harnessing the convene-incubate-launch approach, HILSC innovates solutions for issues affecting Houston's immigrant community to co-create a vibrant and resilient ecosystem where all immigrants, migrants and refugees belong. Coming to the U.S. as a teen from Hong Kong, seeking higher education and political refuge, she centered her purpose on access to justice by making legal services available to those lacking financial resources, political power, English proficiency, or knowledge of the American legal system. She has worked with immigrants on myriad issues as a legal services lawyer for over three decades.

ANGELICA RAZO

Director of Campaigns & Programs, Mi Familia Vota

Angelica is the National Director of Campaigns and Programs at Mi Familia Vota, a national organization dedicated to expanding Latino long-term political representation and building community power. Grounded in her experience growing up in an immigrant, mixed-status family in Houston, she has dedicated her career to addressing social and civic inequities. Razo graduated with a bachelor's degree from Rice University, then advanced within the organization from a local youth coordinator to Texas State Director, then senior national leadership. Today, she strengthens state civic infrastructures to develop locally driven strategies, grassroots organizing and robust advocacy campaigns.

MODERATOR

MARTHA KATTAN

VP of News, Univision Houston

Martha is an accomplished, award-winning broadcasting executive with over 25 years of leadership in the media industry. She currently serves as the VP of Content/News for Univision KXLN Channel 45, leading the top-rated Spanish-language news operation in Houston.

PLENARY SESSION IV

THE NEXT GENERATION OF ETHNIC MEDIA

MARISSA FIALA

Influencer / @HoustonHotSpots

Marissa is the founder of Houston Hotspots, one of the city's most-followed food and lifestyle platforms, reaching a combined audience of more than 1.2 million across Instagram (587K), Facebook (250K), and TikTok (384K). Originally from Dallas, she began blogging about local restaurants and events while working in accounting, and after moving to Houston in 2017 she turned that passion into a full-time business. Today Houston Hotspots runs with a dedicated team producing daily content across food, things to do, and Texas travel, and has expanded into live experiences through its events platform, @houstonhotevents, which curates and hosts gatherings that bring the Houston community together. Her reach and brand partnerships have made her one of the most recognized voices shaping how Houstonians and visitors discover the city.

YESENIA "JJ" RAZO

Digital Media, Yes JJ Media + HCOM / @yeseniaaajj

Yesenia is a digital media professional, community journalist and advocate dedicated to amplifying diverse voices. As creator and host of The Yes JJ Show, she produces impactful content centered on public health, wellness, and community empowerment, partnering with organizations to raise awareness about maternal health and equity. She's also the social media manager for Houston Community Media, driving local communication strategies. Known for her engaging, community-first storytelling, Razo seamlessly blends media production with grassroots advocacy to uplift underrepresented populations and foster meaningful dialogue across Houston and beyond.

SHAWN SINGH

Influencer, The Food Sheep / @shawnthefoodsheep

Shawn is one of Houston's most prolific food and lifestyle creators, reaching nearly 600,000 followers across Instagram (256K), Facebook (74K) and TikTok (268K). Born in downtown Houston, raised between the Heights and Cypress, and a UH Bauer College graduate, he built his following organically from the recommendations people kept asking him for, now covering hundreds of restaurants, more than 70 coffee shops, and the events and lifestyle happenings most people miss. He describes himself as a curator rather than a critic, mixing high-end acclaimed spots with everyday neighborhood places because that range reflects how Houston actually eats. His guiding principle, no gatekeeping and only recommendations worth people's time and money, has made him one of the city's most trusted food voices.

BELL WHITE

Influencer, Totally Randie / @totallyrandie

Bell, also known as TotallyRandie, is a Houston-based digital journalist and content creator who works as National Social Media Correspondent for NNPA's Black Press of America and also curates content for Houston Style Magazine. On TotallyRandie.com and across her social channels, she mixes culture coverage with reporting on key issues facing Black communities.

TABITHA ISRAEL

Founder & CEO, Upstanding Enterprises

Tabitha is the Founder and CEO of Upstanding Enterprises LLC, a Houston-based marketing, communications and media production firm that helps management districts, public agencies, and community organizations reach the city's diverse communities. Her work lives at the intersection of media and influence, spanning content strategy, social media, influencer activations, and in-house media production. As the communications partner for several of Houston's management districts, she works closely with local small businesses, promotes community events, and activates influencers to drive both economic growth and awareness across the neighborhoods she serves.

WORKSHOP

HOW TO USE AI IN THE NEWSROOM

Two things are true: AI has already changed the way that people get information. And, news organizations who embrace AI risk losing their community's trust. This workshop covers basic AI literacy and security. You'll learn how to chart your own course by listening to how your community feels about AI, and using that knowledge to set ethical guardrails for AI usage in your organization. Come curious.

DARLA CAMERON

AI Expert

Darla spent 15+ years building the intersection of journalism, product, and technology — most recently as Chief Product Officer at The Texas Tribune, Texas's leading nonprofit digital newsroom. She now consults with news organizations and media-forward companies on AI strategy, platform migration, and content strategy. She led AI integration across the Tribune, building transparent, audience-facing chatbots that route unanswered questions directly to reporters. The open question for every newsroom right now is whether it becomes an architect of how information flows, or a downstream input to someone else's system. She helps organizations choose the former.

Story

“A cross-party vote by two Democratic lawmakers sparks controversy over party disciplinary action.”

Summary

Two centrist House Democrats representing working-class districts broke Houston’s Korean American softball league — a community tradition once drawing over 1,000 players and fans in the ‘80s and ‘90s — returns after a decade-long hiatus caused by generational turnover and the pandemic, reports Tzuchang Tung for Korean Journal Houston. In a nine-week summer season fielding players from 13-year-old Little Leaguers to people in their 60s, Korean Central Presbyterian Church went 11-2-1 to claim its second straight title.

“Exclusive Interview: Congresswoman Sylvia Garcia on Housing, Immigration and Her Re-Election Campaign”

Summary

In a pre-primary interview, Rep. Sylvia Garcia, the first Latina to represent Texas’s 29th Congressional District, traces her path from a South Texas farmworker family to Congress and explains her plans to respond to rising housing costs, threats to health insurance subsidies and fear of immigration enforcement in Houston communities — including her Restoring Community Trust Act, which would bar the federal government from forcing local police to enforce immigration detainers. Garcia also discusses serving in the minority party, the federal money she brought home for flood control, transit and clinics, and redistricting that she says dilutes the voices of Harris County’s 2 million Latinos.

Story

“Erasing Color, Erasing Community: Erasing Houston’s Rainbow Crosswalks”

Summary

David Clarke’s three-part series for OutSmart documents how the state-ordered erasure of Montrose’s rainbow crosswalks — a 2017 memorial to Alex Hill that Gov. Greg Abbott ordered removed under a state ban on “non-standardized” crosswalk designs — became a flashpoint over LGBTQ+ visibility and local control in Houston. The series follows the story from a coalition of LGBTQ+ organizations that organized against the order, through predawn power-washing and arrests of protesters, to Bering Memorial United Church of Christ painting its own front steps rainbow in response.

"Will The Price of Tomatoes Go Up?"

Summary

In a Spanish-language report for La Prensa de Houston, Domingo Banda answers a question striking a chord in Latino kitchens: Will the price of tomatoes rise? Drawing on USDA, FDA and Commerce Department data, he explains how the end of a nearly three-decade U.S.-Mexico tomato agreement in July 2025 triggered a more than 20% antidumping duty on most tomato imports from Mexico — which comprise 69% of the fresh tomatoes available in the U.S. — and why consumers should expect higher prices later in the year.

“Students Speak Up, Call Out and Advocate for the Community”

Summaries

High school journalist Poojasai Kona argues that federal defunding of public media gives school administrators cover to censor student reporters, and that the risk falls hardest on the 32 states without New Voices laws protecting student press freedom. Tracing what she calls a “top-down trickle of censorship” from national media to school newsrooms, and drawing on her own interviews with student advocates and the Student Press Law Center, she makes the case that who controls what young people are allowed to write shapes both local coverage and pipelines into professional newsrooms.

Houston Youth Poet Laureate Ariana Lee talks with Aris Kian, the youngest person ever named Houston Poet Laureate, about how the academic literary world sidelines spoken word poetry and about using a city-backed title to advocate for her people rather than for City Hall. Kian also talks about the state takeover of the Houston Independent School District including the conversion of local school libraries into discipline centers, against the joy and hope she finds in Houston's slam poetry community.

Taking her story's title from a Harris County commissioner's description of the county's “healthy working relationship” with ICE, which transferred 3,600 people to federal custody in 2023, Andrea Hernandez traces how local cooperation feeds deportations through county jail-bed contracts, ICE detainees issued without judicial warrants, and a state law requiring sheriffs who run jails to sign 287(g) agreements. She argues these partnerships push crime victims into the shadows, citing a Salvadoran woman who called HPD to report domestic abuse and was flagged for an ICE warrant, and shows how jails jeopardize detainees during disasters like Hurricane Harvey.

“Hand-in-Hand Parenting Time” and “Impact of AI on Youth”

Summary

For more than 20 years, Texas Chinese Radio host Pamela Hu and University of Houston–Victoria education professor Hsin-Hui Lin have brought child development knowledge to Chinese-speaking families through “Hand in Hand: Parenting Time,” pairing academic research with everyday questions on topics ranging from parents’ roles, children’s spending money and perfectionist parenting. In one featured episode on AI and youth, Lin calls the technology’s impact on childhood “a very expensive experiment,” warning that kids who lean on AI unsupervised can miss the tone, facial expressions and body language they learn from human interaction.

Summary

A Spring Branch apartment complex that sat abandoned for years, turning into a fire hazard and a magnet for crime, will be razed and redeveloped into public safety and flood-control infrastructure, Xin Ping and Yi Yongji report for NTD Television. With a total investment of more than $137 million, including $18.6 million to acquire the complex and $2 million to demolish it, the property will be replaced by 2030 with a new police station, a fire station and an underground flood detention facility expected to protect more than 1,000 nearby homes.

"How Texas Families Can Prepare Before Disaster Strikes"

Summary

Drawing from a Houston Community Media briefing for The Christian Herald, Edebor turns advice from Harris County emergency management and nonprofit leaders into a preparedness guide for Greater Houston families facing hurricanes, floods, freezes and extreme heat. Pairing the argument that "preparedness is a year-round responsibility" with a warning from Harris County Deputy Emergency Management Coordinator Brian Murray that "no level of government can sustain five million people for a day," Edebor walks readers through building a seven-to-10-day supply kit, understanding insurance deductibles and flood coverage, signing up for Ready Harris alerts, calling 211 for help and finding local emergency resources.

"Living Through the Darkness: My Journey with Mental Health Advocacy"

Summary

In a first-person essay written during National Suicide Prevention Month, 16-year-old advocate Ayaan Moledina writes about living with depression, OCD and anxiety since he was 10, surviving a suicide attempt after classmates ignored his calls for help, losing a close friend to suicide and watching his mosque community cut off mental health discussion after his friend's funeral. Describing his work as federal policy director for Students Engaged in Advancing Texas, he argues that policy alone won't save young lives without empathy from the schools, parents, faith leaders and peers around them.

"Women and Menopause with Dr Anushree Kumar"

Summary

On this Indo American News Radio broadcast, hosts Jay Malhotra and Gautam Sinha talk with Dr. Anushree Kumar, a certified menopause specialist in Sugar Land, about what happens to women's bodies during perimenopause and menopause, including research showing South Asian women tend to reach menopause earlier — up to a third reach it before 45 — which raises long-term heart and metabolic risks. Kumar explains how hormone therapy can relieve symptoms and protect long-term health, especially for women who had their ovaries removed, and urges listeners to find doctors who look at a woman's whole health, including ruling out thyroid disease or iron deficiency.

"They Come Looking For One Person and Take Others"

Summary

In "Terrenos Houston: El Sueño Americano Embargado" ("Houston Land: The American Dream Foreclosed"), a three-part, in-language investigation for La Esquina TX, Castillo and Clisánchez examine Colony Ridge, a 33,000-acre development in Liberty County whose promise of affordable land turned into owner-financed lots sold at interest as high as 12.9% with no check on buyers' ability to pay, pushing mostly Latino families into foreclosure. The series follows the buyers who lost everything, while political rhetoric branding the area a crime and illegal immigration hotspot brought immigration raids that silenced residents, though federal and state lawsuits, that ultimately led to a $68 million settlement in February 2026.

Story

"Revoking Visas, Birthright Citizenship and New Migrant Detention Centers"

Summary

In a series of in-language special reports for La Prensa de Houston published from July 2025 to August 2026, Miguel Mejía gives a running account of the Trump administration's immigration crackdown, from the opening of tent detention camps at Florida's "Alligator Alcatraz" and Fort Bliss in El Paso to militarized zones that now cover about a third of the U.S.-Mexico border. Drawing on civil rights lawyers, lawmakers, border residents and federal officials, the series documents violent arrests, harsh detention conditions, 1,400+ migrants charged with trespassing in military zones, hundreds of thousands of planned visa cancellations and a Supreme Court fight over birthright citizenship that could redefine who gets to be an American.

INFLUENCER OF THE YEAR

BELL WHITE - @TotallyRandie

About

Bell White, known as TotallyRandie, is a Houston-based digital journalist and content creator who works as National Social Media Correspondent for NNPA's Black Press of America and also curates content for Houston Style Magazine. On TotallyRandie.com and across her social channels, she mixes culture coverage with reporting on issues facing Black communities, including the redistricting behind Rep. Al Green's primary defeat after 21 years in Congress and the crash of an 18-wheeler freight truck that killed four young Texas women. Her additional work for BlackPressUSA ranges from interviews on prostate cancer among Black men to coverage of Houston community initiatives including Travis Scott's Cactus Jack Foundation STEM program teaming up with NASA, and the city's Movement Festival honoring George Floyd.

RYAN TEJERO

@onepinoytx - One Philippines Texas

About

Ryan Tejero, editor of One Philippines Texas, is a Houston-based community journalist and content creator who covers Filipino life in Texas. Across One Philippines' social channels, he mixes cultural pride content with direct political access — landing a one-on-one interview with Senate candidate James Talarico, securing credentialed access to The Texas Tribune Festival, and amplifying Mayor Gina Ortiz Jones' engagement with the Filipino community.

BEST WEBSITE

FORWARD TIMES - www.forwardtimes.com

The digital home of the Houston Forward Times, the Black newspaper founded in 1960 and still run by the Carter family, publishes original reporting on the local news, politics, business, health and culture issues that matter most to the Black community it serves. Judges singled out its original reporting and ease of reading; its editorial depth made it the standout entry.
